

Please, leave the Indiana, state imposed, "Telephone Do not Call List" in force, by not passing a federal administrative sanction which would take precedent over the local jurisdiction. If the telemarketers have to only adhere to a nationally imposed standard, they will succeed, because they will only twist the arms of one federal set of regulators, rather than 50 sets of arms. I can't tell you how much more enjoyabel it is to not have the dinner hour with my family NOT interrupted by telemarketers. Please allow the states to enforce their own rules. Thank you for your attention!
